FOUR CONVICTS FAIL IN PRISON BREAK

DESPERATE MEN ARE HALTED AT WIRE SCREEN ON WAY OUT

Notorious Prisoners Trapped in Ohio Penitentiary.

HINT INSIDE JOB
Fugitives, Armed With Long Knives, Surrender.

COLUMBUS, O., July 30.—Four notorious Ohio convicts failed in a daring midnight prison break from the Ohio penitentiary here. They were members of the prison's company K section in which desperate men are confined, and had reached the break cage, a wire screen separating them from the prison yard, before being discovered.

Those implicated were James Gallagher, Cuyahoga county, sentenced for robbery for 10 to 25 years; Burton Carter, Drake county, robbery, serving 15 to 25 years; James Scott, Montgomery, shooting with intent to kill, serving 8 to 20 years; and J. Hart, Summit county, burglary and larceny, serving 5 to 20 years.

All with the exception of Hart have long records of escape attempts. Carter is believed to be the ring leader of the break, which Warden Thomas believes to have been an inside job. Carter led the famous break when 13 men escaped in a rush on the gate. He attempted to drive a truck through a gate on Nov. 8, 1926, and again on January 9, 1928, he and Scott succeeded in scaling the wall to freedom, only to be recaptured.

Gallagher's most recent attempt at escape was a wall scaling try a short time ago.

Sherman Riley, guard discovered the break shortly before 1 o'clock this morning. The men were armed with long knives, but surrendered peacefully, prison officials declared.

It seems hard for this country to do anything outright. We didn't quite veto the World Court, or quite recognize the Chinese republic.

But we have recognized the new Chinese nation in an indirect way, a treaty restoring to it the right to regulate her own affairs without interference from us.

Prof. Duncan, who taught philosophy at Yale for 35 years, is dead. Long and honorable is the list of philosophers, from Thales, Pythagoras, Socrates, Plato, Aristotle, up through the centuries to Bacon, Comte, Kant, and on to the somewhat inconsequential list of moderns.

At first the philosopher developed his idea of hypotheses and tried to make the facts fit it.

Bacon reversed the process by taking the facts and following them wherever they led. That's the modern method.

TWO WOMEN HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Two women passengers in an automobile driven by Richard McCracken, East End, are reported to have been slightly injured in a collision on the Cannon hill, west of Lisbon, at 5 o'clock Sunday night.

McCracken, returning from a family picnic, was driving down the hill in a touring car, when his brakes failed to hold. His car collided with a coupe belonging to Dr. J. C. Gruber, Lisbon, hurtling it to the right side of the road against a roadster belonging to Truman Pilmer, Lisbon.

McCracken's and Gruber's car were badly damaged, but Pilmer's automobile was only slightly damaged.

TWO UNHURT AS COUPE PLUNGES

Benjamin Homer, Newark, structural iron worker, and a companion whose name was not ascertained, escaped injury when their coupe went over the river bank on the River road, near the old power house, last night.

They were returning to Pittsburgh where they are employed when the motor car struck a plank in the road, causing it to hurtle over the embankment.

McElvay Brothers brought the car to their garage in Market street.

Attacks By Owen, Simmons and White Put Democratic National Board on Defensive

By Lawrence Sullivan.
NEW YORK, July 30.—Forced on the defensive for the first time since their campaign got under way, the Democratic national strategy board returned to headquarters today to resume their fight with renewed vigor.

A remarkable series of political changes last week served to convert the Democratic campaign from an aggressively offensive technique to one almost entirely defensive.

The first open bolt came in the announcement of former Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma that he would support Herbert Hoover. The resignation of Senator Simmons from the Democratic national committee was a second blow, and William Allen White's vitriolic attack upon Governor Smith's assembly record, was a third.

Against these three wounds, the campaign manager set their victory in Texas, where, in the crucial race for lieutenant governor, Tom Love, violent anti-Smith candidate, was defeated by a large majority.

"The move in for Governor Smith," White said today, "I am sailing for Europe with Mrs. White Wednesday morning. I have prepared the detailed record of Governor Smith in the assembly at Albany covering a period of 12 years. If he elects to challenge that record, I am ready to furnish photostatic copies of the pages involved, taken directly from the official journal."

Having reversed itself on southern campaign strategy following repeated warnings from southern leaders that the region should not be taken for granted, the Democratic high command plans now to open its speaking

By William K. Hutchinson.
MEDFORD, Ore., July 30.—After a 550-mile motor dash from his California home, Herbert Hoover today was placidly fishing for steelhead trout in the key waters of the Rogue river, 19 miles northeast of here.

The Republican nominee stopped off to seek the gamister fish, while enroute to his favorite fishing grounds in the headwaters of the Klamath river, near Hornbrook, Calif. The nominee will move on this morning to the Klamath stream, high in the Siskiyou mountains.

A dozen members of the Hoover party, which included personal friends of the nominee, newspaper men and photographers, fished with him in the winding Rogue. Hoover was up with the dawn, pulling on waist-high rubber boots and went fishing alone.

CLEVELAND, July 30.—Federal Judge D. C. Westenhaver, 63, was dead at his home here today, having succumbed last night to heart disease.

For 11 years Judge Westenhaver has been a federal judge in the northern Ohio district. It was he who sentenced Eugene B. Debs to the federal penitentiary for a speech delivered at Canton, Ohio.

About a year ago he decided that federal judges should wear gowns when presiding on the bench and set the example by wearing a black silk gown.

His death will bring about a drastic change in the personnel of the northern Ohio federal courts. Judge John M. Killits, of Toledo, has announced that he will resign in September. The only remaining federal judge in the northern Ohio district is Judge Paul Jones of Youngstown.

ACID BLAMED IN COMPLAINTS ON CITY WATER

Chemist Larkins Says Less Chemicals are Used.

RIVER POLLUTED

Unpleasant Odor and Taste Mark Supply.

Unpleasant taste and odors of the city water are caused by acids being emptied into the river from mills in the Beaver valley and not by chemicals with which the water is being treated at the mechanical filtration plant, City Chemist Hartt Larkins, said today.

"We are using less chemicals in the water now than has been used for several months," Larkins declared. "The water has this taste when it reaches the filtration plant and there is no way in which it can be treated to overcome it."

Larkins expressed the opinion that the river was being polluted by the mills in the New-Castle, Sharon, Beaver Falls and other mill communities along the Beaver river and not by the mills in the Midland, Ambridge or the Pittsburgh district. He said that the first complaints regarding the taste and odors from the water were received Saturday afternoon.

The chemist stated that the river water frequently contains acids and other substances which make it unpleasant for drinking purposes but that after it has been treated at the municipal filtration plant it is purified. He asserted that field men from the state department of health reported that the local water supply to be one of the best in the state. Daily tests are made at the water plant laboratory.

Larkins was uncertain how long the present situation would continue but said that he believed that it would be cleared up within two or three days. Many users of city water claim that they have noticed the obnoxious odor and taste to the water for two weeks or more but that it has been worse during the last few days. Many persons are carrying water from Rock Springs park, Chester, and Mineral Springs park at Pughtown.

SON AND FATHER ELECTROCUTED

GREENVILLE, O., July 30.—Ralph Logan, 52, and his son, Bernard Logan, 22, were dead here today, victims of a peculiar tragedy, hours apart but from the same cause, yesterday.

The younger Logan left his home early in the morning to sell a fish creek and, when he failed to return, Ralph Logan went in search of him and found his son's body lying in the creek. The father then returned home and with a brother-in-law, entered the creek to remove the body.

As he did so, he grasped a wire hanging low over the creek and was instantly killed as his son had been, hours before, when he had also gripped the wire not knowing it was high-voltage, and connected to a high-tension line.

HENRI COCHET DOWNS TILDEN, YANK ACE, IN STRAIGHT SETS

ROLAND GARROS STADIUM, Paris, July 30.—The Davis cup stays in France at least another year.

Henri Cochet, good looking young French tennis star, made that certain today by defeating "Big Bill" Tilden, America's ace, in straight sets by the score of 9-7, 8-6 and 6-4.

AMERICANS LOSE 100-METER RACE

OLYMPIC STADIUM, AMSTERDAM, July 30.—One of the American's most disastrous days in Olympic competition was climaxed this afternoon when Frank Wykoff, Glendale, Cal., schoolboy, could do no better than fourth in the 100-meter final while Bob McAllister, self-styled "man of destiny," was sixth and last. The race was won by William of Canada, in 14.5 seconds, with London, the Englishman, second and Lammers, the German, third.

Gruelling Match.
This victory gave the French three match is out of the four already played, assuring them of victory.

It was the worst beating ever administered to the lanky American Davis cup captain, hero of many years of competition, in a Davis cup match. Tilden's grueling match against Larkins, which the American won, and his hard play in the double yesterday, which the Americans lost, told the story. Tilden was not in his usual brilliant form today although he put of a terrific battle. Time after time the American drove out of courts by several feet. He netted a great many balls at moments when a point would have meant a set victory.

Cochet was relentless. He coolly met every new piece of strategy devised by the American. Tilden mixed up his service, dropping over soft balls immediately after one of his cannon ball shots at Cochet's feet. In the midst of rallies Tilden tried to out (Continued On Page 8, Col 3)

SMITH'S FERRY RAILROAD LINE WORK IS NEAR

Tentative Approval Given Road to Youngstown.

$5,026,853 JOB

Montour Branch to Connect Steel City and River.

Early construction of a new north and south railroad line, giving Youngstown, O., a 42-mile rail connection with the Ohio river at Smith's Ferry, was forecast today following tentative approval of the project in a report to the interstate commerce commission from C. V. Burnside, assistant director of finance for the commission.

The estimated cost of the project, embracing north and south extensions from the east and west tracks of the Pittsburgh, Lisbon & Western, is $5,026,853.

Trunk Lines Oppose.
Though the proposed construction was opposed by several trunk line railroads operating through Youngstown and by Pittsburgh steel interests, Burnside, as investigating agent for the commission, concluded that the enterprise should be approved. Recommendations of its special investigators are usually accepted by the commission and there are strong indications the proposed road will be constructed.

The project was brought before the commission by the Montour railroad, which is understood to have acquired control of the Pittsburgh, Lisbon & Western, subject to approval by the commission. The Pittsburgh, Lisbon & Western extends from New Galilee in Beaver county in a general westerly direction to Lisbon, O., in Columbiana county, about 25 miles. On this road are a number of coal mines, none of which, it is said, now produces very heavy tonnage.

Principally Coal Road.
The Montour railroad, one of the properties of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, is a tributary to the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie and is principally a coal road. Its main line extends from Montour Junction, just above Coraopolis on the Ohio river, to Mifflin Junction, about 45 miles.

Some time ago it was pointed out that the Montour, by installing a river-rail trans-shipment connection at Coraopolis, might ship coal from mines along the Montour tracks to Youngstown, using only its own rails and rolling stock and the Ohio river, and that coal shipments might even follow this route north to the Great Lakes, in the event the extensions of the Pittsburgh, Lisbon & Western were built.

These are some of the considerations upon which bitter opposition by existing trunk lines was based.

Burnside in Washington advised the interstate commerce commission to allow the P. L. & W., which is virtually a Pittsburgh Coal company subsidiary, to proceed with its project.

Burnside told the commission that the new construction would represent an attempt "to move Youngstown toward the Ohio river" and to give rate advantages to its steel industries would put them on a competitive basis with the Pittsburgh area.

Will Build 42 Miles.

As proposed, the Pittsburgh, Lisbon & Western, owned by the Montour, will build 42 miles of new road from Smith's Ferry, where the Ohio river crosses the state line between Pennsylvania and Ohio, into Youngstown. From Smith's Ferry, the construction would extend northward to a connection with the present line of the P. L. & W. at a point known as Negley, this link being 13.3 miles long.

From this point west to Mill Rock, 2.2 miles, the route would include the existing line. A second link would extend from Mill Rock north to the vicinity of Youngstown, where it would diverge into two lines, one continuing northward to a connection with a branch of the Erie railroad, just west of Youngstown, and one turning north-eastward and reaching one of the plants of the Youngstown Steel & Tube company at Struthers, O. The total mileage north of Mill Rock would be 28.4 miles, making a total proposed construction of 41.7 miles.

Would Grant Plea.

The Burnside report also recommends that the permission applied for by the Montour railroad to acquire control of the P. L. & W. by purchase of its capital stock be granted.

The Pittsburgh Coal company has assured the interstate commerce commission that it will provide much traffic for the new road. The project will, in effect, result in the development of a belt line southwest of Youngstown which will provide transportation facilities to develop a new industrial area.

PITTSBURGH AND LAKE ERIE CO.
SEEKS BEAVER VALLEY RAILROAD

Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation Interested in Move to Buy or Lease Branch Line.

BEAVER, July 30.—Unconfirmed reports in the lower valley are that the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie railroad and the Jones & Laughlin Steel corporation are endeavoring to buy or lease the Beaver Valley Railroad company, which operates a line through Beaver and connects the P. & L. E. railroad with the Cleveland & Pittsburgh railroad at Vanport. It is learned from a reliable source the railroad property was inspected by the owners and steel company interests several weeks ago.

The control of the Beaver Valley Railroad company by the P. & L. E. railroad would protect the latter railroad on tonnage from the Youngstown district in competition with the proposed line from Smith's Ferry to Youngstown by an extension of the Pittsburgh, Lisbon & Western Railroad company.

With these developments and the reported contemplation of a six-track system for the Pennsylvania company from Rochester to Pittsburgh, much activity in railroad circles in the county is foreshadowed.

50 ARE HURT IN SOUTHERN PACIFIC CRASH

Crack Coast Train Hits Lawyers' Special.

170 ARE ABOARD

Collision Occurs in Front of Cortena, Calif., Station.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 30.—Nearly 50 persons were being treated here today for injuries sustained when the Cascade Limited, crack coast train of the Southern Pacific, crashed into the rear of a special train of the American Bar association at Cortena, three miles north of Williams, late yesterday.

Rounding a curve at a speed estimated at 50 miles an hour, the huge locomotive of the limited ripped into the observation car of the bar association special as it stood before the tiny station at Cortena. The bar association train had been halted for some minor repairs to its locomotive.

On the special train were 170 lawyers from all parts of the country with their wives and members of their families. Many were gathered in the observation car at the time of the crash.

The towering locomotive of the Cascade Limited came so swiftly and suddenly around the curve, witnesses declared, that there was no time for the passengers on the bar association special to escape.

The terrible impact flung the locomotive of the Cascade Limited from the rails.

From the nearby towns of Arbuckle, Williams and Maxwell, fleets of automobiles were quickly dispatched to take the injured to nearest hospitals. About 20 were taken to the Arbuckle sanitarium. Others were taken to Woodland.

Absentee Voting De adline

Indicative of the interest in the state, district and county primaries to be held on Tuesday, August 14, is the increase in applications for absentee voter's ballots announced by the Columbiana county board of deputy state supervisors of elections. With the election two weeks distant, nearly 100 electors have exercised the right of suffrage.

Fights of 25 county candidates for Republican nominations for district and county offices have prompted many voters to take advantage of their right under the law enacted in 1917. There are seven contests on the Republican ticket and one on the Democratic ticket in Columbiana county, with almost as many races for places on the state tickets.

The period of absentee voting, which means an elector who, by reason of business or pleasure, expects to be away from his usual voting place on August 14, shall be given election supplies if he files an application and gives a forwarding address, will expire on Friday, August 10. Ballots thus marked will be counted by precinct judges on Primary day.

Vacationists and others who will be absent from their home precincts on election day, and who desire a voice in the selection of their party's nominees for the November election, should apply at once for ballots in order to prevent disfranchisement.

Spenders, Not Hoarders

S. K. Ratcliffe, noted publicist and former American correspondent of the Manchester Guardian, long a resident in this country, now sets forth, in the current issue of the Contemporary Review, a defense of the United States against "the familiar charges of materialism, superficiality, crushing uniformity, and consequent spiritual inanition."

All Americans will feel grateful to Mr. Ratcliffe for this article, in which he states forcefully what most Americans believe to be true, concluding that "the nation, which for a century has been condemned as the people of the dollar, clings more lightly to money than anyone in Europe. Americans hold that money is to be spent, not hoarded."

It is not a bad, but a good thing that wealth should be laid out for the establishment of a high minimum of the communal life. It cannot be a bad thing that a whole people should aim at being well dressed, well fed and able to keep clean without a struggle. It is not materialism to bring light and power into the home, and so release civilized womanhood from a deadly servitude of stoves and dustholes.

And if the idea of cities without slums is materialism, the best of England would never have been devoted to that very ideal.

Winning Grain Belt

It is coming—the winning of the grain belt ballots by Herbert Hoover.

During his trip through the grain states the Republican nominee had opportunity to confer with many leaders. He has discussed with them the farm problem, and he has been received with enthusiasm.

Senator McNary has turned in for Hoover, and is represented as entirely satisfied with the nominee's attitude toward the agrarian and his problems. Governor McMillen of Nebraska, still is to be heard from, but there are indications that even he is more than half way on the bandwagon.

Mr. Hoover has an appeal that is difficult to withstand. Take Governor Hammill, of Iowa, for instance, a sturdy opponent of the conventions choice. But after a conference with the nominee, he announces himself delighted, recognizes in Hoover a real friend of the farmer with ideas of great value and committed to practical legislation.

The grain states are lining up. Kansas already is in line, with Charley Curtis and Henry Allen and Arthur Capper and the others in the Hoover camp. Nebraska will swing into the parade of states, too. The Dakotas already have approved the nominee. Iowa is sitting pretty. And the chances are Oklahoma will be strongly Republican this year.

As the solver of industrial problems, Hoover is without a peer.

Steel Output Increases

Dispatches from Pittsburgh and other steel centers show that the first half of the current year has made a new high record in this industry, exceeding the first half of last year by more than three per cent. And this in spite of the fact that railroad purchases have been lighter than for many years.

The largest factor in the gain reported may be found in increased sales of agricultural implements, a decided indication that the farmer is coming into a more satisfactory economic condition right along.

Wheat is rolling into the Kansas City market at the rate of more than a thousand cars a day, with a prospect that the fields will continue to produce a good crop, aided by new machinery.

Banks are so well supplied with money in that region that they are experiencing no difficulty whatever in meeting the harvest demand. In these conditions there is nothing to show the traditional presidential year misgivings.

Dress for Comfort

The paramount question of the moment is whether a man has a right to dress for comfort in hot weather, or for the conventions.

One correspondent says the women have emancipated themselves in the matter of dress, and asks, why not men?

It is a fact that a woman may leave off as much as she pleases and still be considered a lady, but if a man goes into a cafeteria without his coat, or into his office in his shirt sleeves, he is frowned upon and considered an outcast.

The outstanding thing right now is for the men to throw off the shackles of convention and appear in their shirt sleeves whenever they feel like it, regardless of the occasion. It cannot be said that a man isn't presentable when he is not wearing a coat. A clean shirt is just as nice looking as a coat—and more comfortable.

HASKIN DAILY LETTER

By Frederick J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 30.—Aviation, for long an experimental science, has been growing as a business somewhat silently. It required the organization of the regulatory work of the department of commerce to bring to light what a substantial industry flying has developed into. As yet no figures have been compiled showing how much capital has been invested in this newest industry, how much is collected, and what profits are made but there can be little doubt, when its volume is considered, that many millions are involved.

Most Americans still think of airplanes as curiosities, manufactured more or less experimentally under the eyes of inventors. Inventors are constantly busy, it is true, but the trade has reached such proportions that there are no less than 123 corporations and individuals engaged in the regular manufacture of heavier-than-air machines, turning out stock models at a rapid rate. In addition to these makers, there are 128 firms classified as airplane distributors and 38 classified merely as airplane dealers.

No trade or industry progresses very far in the United States without developing certain dog stars, shadows of itself, and the airplane manufacturing business is no exception. Already there are no less than 22 manufacturers of airplane accessories which would suggest that it will not be long before a plane will be so burdened down with gadgets, like an automobile, that it will have difficulty in rising from the ground.

Some airplane manufacturers, like some automobile makers, buy engines made by others to use in their machines. There are now 26 airplane engine manufacturers and 36 engine dealers and, inevitably, the repair man thrusts up his head in the shape of 8 firms which rebuild airplane engines. Some 75 spare part manufacturers and dealers now in business, indicate that the perfect plane has not yet been built.

The owner of a motor car can cheat the garage man by parking on the street but one can do that so readily with airplanes. So we find 44 manufacturers of hangars in business. One can rent space in a public hangar, to be sure, but sometimes that is inconvenient. The kiddies have not been forgotten nor the enthusiasts who want to study aviation indoors so there are seven manufacturers who apparently find it profitable to devote themselves to the production of toy and model airplanes.

Makers of amphibians, flying boats and seaplanes are classified separately. There are eight of them and six dealers.

Night flying is growing apace and 34 companies have gone into the business of making lighting equipment and devices to guide the way. Four companies make day air-markers.

Just as the accessory man follows in the wake of every new industry so does the publisher. Every trade or industry or profession must have its organ. Twenty-four periodical publications now are in the field, including an annual Who's Who in American Aeronautics.

Not so very long ago, the profession of city planner or civic engineer was thought to be a decidedly new wrinkle but today there are 22 firms specializing in airport design and construction and 3 in airport management and operation. The gunman has by no means been forgotten. Two companies are in the business of providing armament for aircraft.

This is but one end of the new industry which is rising in America. Another is in connection with operation. Already there are 30 commercial concerns engaged in making scheduled trips for hire. They are divided into three general classes. One class carries only passengers. A second, passengers and express matter and a third, passengers, express, and mail. The mail, of course, is carried under contract with the post office department which no longer operates its own planes.

By far the greater number of airplane carriers for hire, however, are the free lances, not running on scheduled tips but performing what, even in the air, is termed taxi service, sight-seeing, and special delivery. No less than 35 companies and individuals are at present engaged in this work. Every large city has such an airplane livery bangar and many small towns have. One may hire a plane to hop to the next town fifty miles away or across the continent. Last winter when several banks in Florida suffered heavy runs, the Federal Reserve Bank at Atlanta hired an air taxi to take cash to their relief. They are available for any kind of odd job.

NEW YORK Day By Day

By O. O. McIntyre.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Diary of a modern Peppys: Out in the weltering heat and a teamster stopped to hold a pack of ice to a horse's head and it somehow brightened the day. And in a midtown block a fire was raging, the first I have witnessed in a year.

In the afternoon to call on Annette Harvey and her mother, once neighbors in my home town and also to see Gene Markey, although a Chicagoan, is a gazetteer for quaint eating places in Manhattan. Afterward for a benzine buggy ride with Pat and Bob Brinkerhoff.

To dinner with Albert Keller and his wife and Joseph Stransky, the orchestra leader, and his wife, and afterward we looked at the Keller collection of porcelains, bronzes and primitive paintings, probably the most unique for its size in the world. So to bed.

There is the story of a vaudeville trapezist whose act was climaxed by swinging out over the audience suspended by the back of his head. He had been opening shows for years with never a round of applause. One evening while he was in the climax of his act a famous man entered the box of the theatre. There was a wild burst of applause. And the acrobat took a bow.

Another little story with a wisp of drama concerns one of the most beautiful actresses on the stage. She was divorced from her husband but they remained friends. Several years later he married again and telephoned to ask if he might bring his bride to call. She acquiesced and selected the oldest and most unbecoming frock she owned. This she donned, removed all cosmetic artifices, arranged her hair in a most unattractive manner, and greeted her visitors. She explained afterward it meant only a few moments in her life and she desired to make her wifely successor as comfortable as possible.

YOUR HEALTH

An Ounce of Prevention Is Worth A Pound of Cure.

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland.

Just because the baby drinks milk is no reason why it needs no water. As a matter of fact its digestion cannot be perfect without water. This tiny morsel of humanity needs water to dissolve the wastes and carry away the poisons of the body. For health's sake it must have an abundance of water.

Everybody knows how necessary it is that the water supply should be pure. No city is considered a civilized community unless it has an abundant water supply. The highest progress the city is making in the protection of health is proven by the care given to securing a supply of pure water. In most communities it is safe for grownups to make use of the city water for drinking purposes.

But what is true of adults is not true of babies. The digestive processes of infants are so delicate that they are more easily disturbed than adults. It is not safe to give to tiny babies drink. The city water may be quite good enough and safe enough for us, but it will probably be entirely unsuited for the infant.

I want you to appreciate this because it involves a lot of trouble to prepare the drinking water for an infant. It must be boiled and then cooled and kept in a perfectly sanitary place in order to have it safe. This is true, you know, of all foods and beverages given to a baby. Boiling kills the germs, so if the foods and beverages are exposed to intense heat the dangerous elements they contain are destroyed.

Regardless of all the care given to the water supply, most drinking water is more or less contaminated. It may contain the colon bacillus. This is a germ which is capable of producing diarrhea, and an infant must not be exposed to this danger.

Being a mother is an exacting job. It requires many sacrifices and much time. It is time well spent, however, because there is no greater reward than to have this precious life develop under the observation and care of the parent.

I can give you no better advice at this season of the year than to make sure that every drop of water given to the baby is water which has been boiled and is free from the danger of carrying the germs of disease.

It is only a little while ago that I told you about this, but I want to impress upon you once more the significance of the baby's supply of drinking water.

Other Editors Say
 Sizing Up Our Tourists.
 News from Paris forecasts the placing of sleeping cars on day trains in France, particularly the morning boat trains from Paris to the coast. The idea is that the American intending to sail the next day makes a last night of it in the Montmartre district or the Montparnasse, and is in genuine need of rest and sleep when he takes the train in the morning to catch his boat for the homeward journey.

This way of taking leave of Paris may be true enough of a certain percentage of American tourists, but perhaps the railway agents will do well to be sure that the sleeping accommodations are paid for before the risks of that last night are taken by the venturesome tourist. Otherwise he may be found crawling into the day coach, with hardly enough money left to feed himself from Havre to New York, leaving the sumptuous sleeping quarters empty and unpaid for.—Columbus Dispatch.

Once Overs
 By J. J. Mundy.
 When You Rush Through a Vacation.
 Does a hurried, anxious spirit predominate when you start on your vacation?
 In your automobile trip do you lay out a course which means a stiff run to keep up with planned arrivals?
 And then do you race through the country more intent upon making time and avoiding accidents than you are upon seeing the beauties of nature?

When you reach home from such a trip you wonder why you seem less rested and fit for work than you were before you started?
 It should not be difficult to explain this after-effect.
 Driving all day at fast speed is hard on the eyes, mind and nervous system.

You are physically tired at the end of each day, but under the impetus of covering ground you cannot relax sufficiently.
 It is not until you return home that it comes over you, the strain that you have been through.

A real vacation has no far away goals each day, but permits stopping at places of interest, when and as the mood dictates.
 A well-mapped out route, casual easy progress, time to digest the new ideas presented, and you come home a new person.

CHANGING TIRE IS EASY TASK FOR S.-S. SHOP

They'll do it and Save You the Dirty Work.

FIX BATTERIES

East End Firm Prompt on Emergency Calls.

Alexander McNab, marine engineer of Bridgeport, Conn., promises to come to the relief of the white-flashed driver who has to get out in the mud to jack up his car when a tire goes flat. McNab has invented a hydro-pneumatic lifting device that may be operated from inside the car.

One merely turns a knob in the floor, switches a lever on the dash, and starts his engine. A plunger drops down beside the limping wheel, a pump starts to work, and in 13 seconds the tire is off the ground. When a new wheel or tire has been put on, the car is lowered by a reversal of the process. The jack returns to the housing.

That would be wonderful, wouldn't it, if every car was fixed to operate with one of these lifting devices so that we would not dirty ourselves all up when we change a tire.

But in view of the fact that we are not so blessed at the present time with devices of the kind that the Bridgeport engineer has invented, we must employ the next best means.

Tires must be taken off, replaced wheels jacked up and down by hand, it's true, but Mr. Motorist, himself, doesn't necessarily have to do this work when all he has to do is call out

Save Repair Costs; Buy Used Parts at Auto Wrecking Co.

This is a tip for those motorists who didn't have their automobiles overhauled this spring.

About this time of the year, the car, unless it is a brand new one, is beginning to feel the effects of hot weather driving, especially after a number of long, grueling trips.

It's better, if this is the case, to give the car the once-over, correct defects, if any, replace worn out parts, and generally tune it up for the remainder of the season, rather than continue to drive it and chance a breakdown some place.

Many East Liverpool motorists may not be aware of the fact that it is possible to cut the cost of repairing a great deal by purchasing used parts instead of new ones. A great part of any repair job or overhauling bill is charged to parts and this may be eliminated by purchasing these parts at a cost very much under the new price at the East Liverpool Auto Wrecking company, 767 Dresden avenue.

The East Liverpool Auto Wrecking company carries a complete line of parts for any make of car and most any model, including radiators, generators, magnetos, tires, rims, batteries, carburetors, wheels, gears, etc.

Give them a trial if you need something of this sort. You may find just what you need and if you do, you'll save money.

The S. & S. road service car. They'll do the dirty work and they're very reasonable about it.

The S. & S. Tire and Battery Service company is located at 1245 Pennsylvania avenue, next door to the car barn. And while they do the repairing, battery charging and fixing, and a little motor repairing, they are equipped to handle emergency calls to any part of the district.

That's where they're just as handy as McNab's device. They're on the job any time you call them and they guarantee real service on every call. Their telephone number is 957-J. Jot it down and use it the next time you get stranded.

GOOD BRAKES BIG FACTOR IN SAFE DRIVING

And O. V. Doak Can Make Your Brakes Good.

PAYS TO BE SURE

Don't Think About it; Get After Them Now.

The principal thing that most people do about automobile accidents is to deplore them. There's that much to be said for accidents. They contribute to the conversation of a nation.

One might say, therefore, that those who lament and condemn are trying to talk themselves out of a job. If they succeed in abolishing accidents, they'll be put to the trouble of finding something else to deplore.

Others are going about it in a different way. Starting from the well-established hypothesis that everything that happens has a cause, they are working for the removal of causes.

A well defined source of no small number of our daily automobile accidents can be traced to faulty braking mechanism; either poor brake lining, worn out lining, or lily adjusted brakes.

This is one cause that O. V. Doak's automobile service station, at 122 Summit lane, can remove quickly and efficiently.

At Doak's they will inspect your brakes for you in five minutes. If oiling and adjustment of the mechanism are necessary this can also be done while you wait.

In addition to the brake lining service they are equipped to overhaul motors and other mechanism on the car.

You can easily find them, one-half block west of the Diamond—122 Summit lane.

City Forces Repair Reservoir Spillway

Job One of Most Important on Municipal Repair Program; "Clam-shell" Digging Out Aten's Run.

Taking advantage of favorable weather conditions, Wellsville service department employees are rushing repair work on the spillway at the municipal reservoir in Little Yellow creek.

The spillway job is one of the most important on the city's vast repair program and as such is being given immediate attention by city officials. During the rain storm that left damage estimated by City Engineer McGill at more than $17,000 in its wake, a portion of the spillway was washed away.

A new wall is being constructed by the city, slightly higher and more effective than the former wall.

Construction of a permanent section in the 16-inch water main from the reservoir to the city at a point near the third mill dam where it was washed away, is being delayed pending the completion of work at the spillway.

Service department has not announced the type of construction it will use in replacing the present temporary eight-inch pipe.

"Clam-shell" for excavating was put to work in Aten's run Saturday. The ditching is expected to provide better drainage facilities in the event of heavy rains in the future.

GOV. AL SMITH WILL IGNORE WHITE ATTACK

Democratic Nominee Will Take Fling at Owen.

ENJOYS VACATION

Swims and Plays Golf at Hampton Bays.

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., July 30.—Governor Al Smith has decided to ignore the latest attack made on his legislative record by William Allen White, Kansas editor, but when he returns to New York on Wednesday he probably will have something more to say to former U. S. Senator Robert L. Owen, because of the latter's intention to bolt the Democratic party.

The governor is enjoying a brief vacation at Hampton Bays, a few miles west of here, and he made it plain to day that he intends to devote all of his time for the next two days to swimming and golf and to forget about national politics.

Recently the governor made a bitter attack upon White because the latter pictured his legislative record as being friendly to the saloon and the liquor traffic. This brought a reply from White but the governor will ignore it.

Denies Farm Conference Report. When former Senator Owen announced he would not support Smith because of his Tammany affiliations and his witness, the governor promptly countered with the announcement that four years ago Owen asked him to induce the Tammany delegation at the national convention to support him for presidential candidates.

When the governor was asked if he would comment on White's latest broadside, he replied:

"No, and that also goes for Owen." Close friends of the governor predicted today, however, that he is leading his political gun and that as soon as he gets back to New York he will take another shot at Owen.

He denied he would confer with farm leaders as soon as he returns to the city.

"I don't know anything about such a conference," he said.

Plays Golf Today. The governor was to play golf today at the Shinnecock Hills golf course with his son Arthur.

When the governor said he had not played the Shinnecock course in two years, some one asked him if he considered his golf game had improved in that time.

"Off the record," he said, smiling. "It's getting worse every day. But on the record, steady improvement."

With Mrs. Smith and members of their family, the governor went to St. Rosale's church yesterday, a short distance from Hampton Bays.

"I'll write part of your story for you," the governor told reporters. "Take this down."

"When the governor left church he was greeted on the highway by visitors to the summer resorts adjacent to Hampton Bays and by many permanent residents of Long Island who have known the governor and who have seen him going back and forth to church for 20 years."

The governor leaned back in his chair and asked: "How is that for reporting?" As soon as the governor returns to Albany he will settle down to work in earnest on the final draft of the address he will deliver on August 22, when he is to be formally notified of the nomination.

THE Maytag was the original gyrofoam washer, which makes water do the washing. But the Maytag does more than that—it keeps the water hot to expand the meshes of the clothes, loosen the dirt and aid the cleaning action of the soap and it keeps the soap thoroughly mixed with the water where it will do the most good.

These are some of the reasons why the Maytag washes faster—an entire washing in an hour or so; washes cleaner—collars, cuffs and grimy overalls without hand-rubbing; washes delicate garments hand carefully.

Wringing the clothes is easy with the marvelous New Maytag Soft-Roller Water Remover—another exclusive Maytag advantage. It is practically automatic in every operation.

COOLIDGE WILL AID HOOVER IN FALL CAMPAIGN

G. O. P. Chieftains Will Call Upon President.

ROLE OF ADVISER

Three Speeches Will be Made by Executive.

By Wm. S. Neal.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—The political sagacity of President Calvin Coolidge which has carried him triumphantly through a score of battles of the ballot, will be invoked by Republican campaign chieftains when the campaign reaches its height early in the fall, it was learned here today. The president's offer to aid Herbert Hoover in his struggle to reach the White House will be accepted not only in calling upon him for speeches but wielding the "big stick" as head of the party to settle internal difficulties and in deciding the strategy of the fight.

The desire to have the benefit of the president's advice was declared by one Republican leader here to have had an important bearing on the decision to maintain the party's campaign headquarters in this city.

Prestige Diminished
With this situation arising, the president will find himself in the role of adviser to Hoover and national chairman Work, both of whom have occupied positions of advisers to the president in their long cabinet service. Three speeches are expected to be made by Mr. Coolidge during the campaign, one in the middle west, one in the east, probably New York, and one "from the throne" in Washington. They are regarded by political leaders as second only to the acceptance speech of Hoover which is to become the Republican "Campaign Bible."

Reports given to national headquarters by politicians from all parts of the country have convinced leaders that Mr. Coolidge's prestige is undiminished and, in fact, has grown as result of his virtual declination of the nomination for another term.

He is expected by them to prove a powerful influence in check-mating the plans of Governor Alfred E. Smith and Democratic Chairman John J. Raskob to wear both the business and farm vote from the Republican party.

Popular With Farmer
Political leaders from the farm belt are almost unanimous in declaring that Mr. Coolidge is still popular with the farmer despite his vetoes of the McNary-Haugen bill and eastern visitors declare that he would be the most potent orator on the stump in that section.

Although Mr. Hoover, according to his advisers here, plans to wage a campaign strictly "on his own" he has been such a powerful influence in the Coolidge administration that its record must be carried to the people for endorsement. The Republican nominee, it is understood, will go farther than Mr. Coolidge has on the question of farm relief, but in all other respects will adopt the administration policies as his own.

While headquarters activities are being speeded up here this week, few decisions of importance in the conduct of the campaign are expected to be made until the return of Mr. and Mrs. Hoover to Washington and the return of the president in September.

Final settlement of the campaign budget, organization work in the women's campaign and further conferences by chairman work on the machinery of the committee were on the program for the week.

ROTARIANS WILL HEAR JUDGE FARR

Appellate Judge L. T. Farr, Lisbon, will be the speaker at tomorrow's luncheon of the Rotary club in the banquet hall of the Y. M. C. A. Ray Birch, automobile dealer, will be chairman.

Hoover Fishes

the steelhead is one of the "fighting" fish on record, doing flipflops many feet out of the water when hooked.

Hoover brought his party here after a two-day motor ride from Palo Alto.

The nominee drove 260 miles up the California coast Saturday to Bull Creek Grove in the midst of a forest of giant redwood trees. The party camped out beneath the trees, ate dinner at a campfire, and slept on cots in the open, beneath the skies.

Nominee Shaves Himself.

The nominee arose at 5:30 Sunday morning, shaved himself beneath a 200-foot high redwood, ate a ham and egg breakfast and carried his party another 280 miles up the coast and across several mountain ranges into Oregon. The route lay through pine-needle forests, past giant redwood groves, along hazardous one-way mountain trails and out along cliffs overhanging the Pacific. At one spot the trail hung along the face of a towering cliff 1,000 feet above the Pacific ocean. A skid of two feet would have thrown the nominee's car catapulting into the ocean. His party, however, got an airplane view of the Pacific.

Young Allan Hoover, son of the nominee, was in one mishap. The car, in which he was riding with Dr. Alonzo Taylor, a Stanford professor, and two newspaper men, skidded on a road under construction and went into a ditch after giving the occupants a bad scare. No one was injured. The car was hauled out of the ditch by a tractor at work on the road.

Hoover didn't learn of the mishap until the end of the day's run.

TUNNEY DEFERS "RETIREMENT"

NEW YORK, July 30.—Gene Tunney failed to announce his retirement from the ring today, as had been expected in many quarters, the champion explaining to the assembled newspaper men that a mistake had been made in scheduling the release of his "important announcement" for this afternoon. The announcement in question, Tunney explained, will be made tomorrow afternoon and will give a "yes or no" answer to current reports which have insisted that the heavy weight champion is about to retire to private life.

ATTEMPT TO KILL PILSUDSKI FAILS

BERLIN, July 30.—An attempt to assassinate Marshal Pilsudski, Polish minister of war, was frustrated through discovery of a time bomb in the Polish army office, according to private advices from Warsaw today. The bomb was in a package addressed to Marshal Pilsudski. The dispatches said news of the affair was kept secret in Warsaw and that when it leaked out, there were rumors that Pilsudski, in a rage, had shot one of the soldiers on guard at the army office.

The team has been winning on the road but has slumped during each home stay.

France Keeps Cup

fox the Frenchman by cutting one ball and then driving another but he seldom found Cochet off guard.

Plays Inspired Tennis.

An analysis of the score showed that Cochet scored 140 points to Tilden's 125. Cochet had three service aces, forty-three outs, forty-two nets, three double faults and thirty-three placements. Tilden had two service aces, forty-one outs, fifty-six nets, one double fault and forty placements.

Cochet seemed to play inspired tennis when it became apparent that he had an excellent chance of defeating Tilden in straight sets—something that no one had ever done before in a Davis cup play. He outplayed the American steadily, keeping his shots in the court, while Tilden repeatedly drove the ball a foot and more over the base line and into the net.

The French crowd went wild when the winning ball whizzed over the net. Hundreds poured onto the court and carried the young Frenchman off on their shoulders. The Americans present sat in a sort of stupefied silence. They couldn't believe that the once great Tilden actually had been beaten in straight sets.

John Hennessey of Indianapolis and Rene Lacoste met in the final and fifth set, which had been relegated to the status of an exhibition match by Cochet's great victory.

FOUR OUTINGS AT ROCK SPRINGS

Four picnics will be held at Rock springs park this week. Saturday will be Patriotic American day at the park, when a capacity crowd will come to Chester on the steamer, Washington. Many others will come by automobile, the crowd being estimated at 5,000. The Morris family reunion also will be held on Saturday.

The steamer Washington will bring a railroad excursion from Altoona and Mansfield to the park on Sunday, August 5, meeting the train at Rochester.

Gene Foutley and his orchestra will play for dances on Thursday and Saturday nights. The Great Foutley will present open air performances every afternoon and night this week.

THREE CONVICTS DIE IN BLAZE

HOUSTON, Texas, July 30.—Three convicts are dead and seven others are in a serious condition today as the result of burns sustained when the mess hall at the Blue Ridge state prison farm No. 2 took fire Saturday night. The seven injured are reported in a critical condition. The fire was caused by the explosion of a box of motion picture film which was ignited by a match accidentally dropped into it. The mess hall became an inferno and three were burned to death before the fire was brought under control.

The dead are Floyd Pinson, L. B. Clinkscales and William Key.

FINDLAY, O., July 30.—Police today were without a clue to the two unmasked men who forced L. C. The bandits took $150 from the safe and $15 from Stout.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, July 30.—Bulls in the stock market lost no time in booming prices of active stocks at the beginning of trading today. An active demand for the speculative favorites accompanied the more favorable and hopeful surveys of business and industrial conditions throughout the country, and it was noted that outside traders showed their preference for the high-grade stocks in the money-making industries—steel, motor car manufacturing, copper and general manufacturing.

General Motors reached a new high on the movement above, 195 in further reflection of its brilliant first half-year earning records made public last week. Chrysler and Dodge moved upward, and Studebaker was strong on favorable reports from the distributing markets.

Banks and bankers expressed some concern for the condition of the call loan market, in which an unusually large volume of corporation or "outside" funds are tied up, and the sudden withdrawal of which might cause a sharp advance in call rates. The call market started the day at 5 1/2 per cent with apparently a good supply of funds at that rate.

The "Chicago group" of mercantile and specialty stocks, including Sears Roebuck and Montgomery Ward led a new advance in the first hour, Sears Roebuck moving upward three points to 12 1/2. High-priced specialties moved upward with little effort under the stimulus of strong outside demand. The rails were active and firm.

HENRY FORD, 65, HITS YOUNGSTERS

DETROIT, July 30.—Without the guidance of men over 50, the "youngsters" would make a mess of running this old world, Henry Ford indicated today as he celebrated his sixty-fifth birthday by attending to his routine tasks at the Ford Motor company.

Ford was up early and went for a short walk. Later he met newspaper men while making the rounds of his various plants. Ford appeared to be in the best of health and declared he expected to do more in the next five years than in the last twenty.

Ford returned to Detroit at midnight Saturday after paying a flying visit to his old friend, Thomas A. Edison. He made the trip by automobile via Delaware Gap, Pa. Ford denied that he was a spectator at the Tunney-Henney fight as reported over the radio.

"Some men of 65 perhaps should not do too much running and jumping," he said, "but that is no reason why they should not do as much work with the mind as ever—and better work."

MAIL HAULING RATE BOOSTED

WASHINGTON, July 30.—A 15 per cent increase to the railroads for hauling the mail was granted today by the interstate commerce commission. The new rate is effective August 1 and will cost the government about $15,000,000 annually.

tain's fly, philosophizing on the wheel of the coach.

There is no positive knowledge, no positive philosophy. But philosophy is one of the most important and interesting of human pursuits.

In the first half of this year, General Motors made a net clear profit of $161,267,974, a new record not only for General Motors, but for any other industrial concern in the world. General Motor sales increased in the six months 26.4 per cent.

Mr. Raskob gave up an interesting job when he left General Motors to work on Governor Smith's campaign. But he got a new job as interesting.

Francis White Emerson, of Boston, gives to the British Museum his water colors by William Blake. "The noblest benefaction that has ever come from America to this department," the British government calls the gift, worth more than $250,000.

When Blake made the water colors in his little back room, he got 18 cents a piece for them. Such often is the reward of genius, while it lives. Perhaps Blake can look down and see how things have changed. But he might not be interested.

CAPT. ROBERT DOLLAR, of the Pacific coast, lands in New York at the end of his sixth trip round the world. If he were younger, Capt. Dollar is 85, he would fly around. When the captain leaves this earth—may it be many years hence—he will be able to tell what the world is like. What is more important, he has enabled thousands of his fellow citizens to see the earth. He is one of the ablest American ship builders and ship managers. More such men, to whom ships are ships, not stock ticker material, would let the American flag see more of the world.

BRITAIN, with railroads and textile industry actually run as a loss, calls on workmen to stand part of the loss.

RAILROAD workers consent to a cut of 1.2 per cent in pay, a loss of $15,000,000. Textile workers have not settled their problem, and employers start a lockout to precipitate a climax. In this country, so far as railroads are concerned, the government would give owners authority to increase rates and take it out of the public—which is simpler.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE is no mere fisher with worms. He can fish with worms, and does, if he must. But when he fishes for trout that actually jump out of the water to seize a hook with an imitation fly attached, he discards the humble Vermont worm.

RECENTLY he caught 26 trout in one day. Among flies used by him were "A Royal Coachman, a Grizzly King, a Professor and one other." The keen pleasure that the president takes in fishing comes down through thousands of years from some early Coolidge, fishing perhaps on a British island, where the program was, "Catch fish, or starve."

PARIS fashions will revive the old "Floradora" style of dress, pinned back tightly, long skirts. This is good news for dressmakers, and especially for those that manufacture material.

300 FAMILIES HOMELESS IN KANSAS FLOOD

Rampage of Creek Inundates Town of Hays.

DAMAGE HEAVY

No Loss of Life Reported as People Flee.

HAYS, Kan., July 30.—Big creek, transformed into an angry river by the deluge over the week-end, went on a rampage here early this morning. One third of Hays is under water and at least 300 families are homeless.

With the damage estimates already running into the hundreds of thousands of dollars, the flood waters at an early hour today gave no indication of abating.

Only the second story of many houses showed above the flood.

Although no loss of life had been reported in the hasty early morning check up it is feared that some may have drowned in the isolated districts.

When Big creek first made its angry temper known here before dawn, scenes of the greatest confusion prevailed. The creek has never been of such proportions as to allow boat travel, and so the only means of rescue lay in hastily constructed rafts. In the districts where the flood was deepest men carried their wives and children to safety on their backs.

Union Pacific station here had a taste of the tide, the waters rushing unchecked through the deserted waiting rooms. The tracks are washed out in four places.

The railroad bridge west of town was considered doomed.

It was learned here that Big creek there, Great Bend Kansas, also was also had given Ellis, a nearby town, a taste of its mood, some 40 families having been reported as washed out reported as suffering.

Fasting Aids Eyesight.
That by fasting he was able to improve his eyesight to such an extent that two years ago he threw away the spectacles he wore for 14 years and has never resumed their use, is the claim of Trelawney Irving, a well known London man. Other prominent people of England have taken up the idea with reported success.

In his treatment Irving at first abstained entirely from food, then took orange juice in water, and lemon juice. Then, he says, he was given "an infusion of spinach and lettuce," and later apple-water. Altogether his fast lasted 50 days. Irving was able on the forty-seventh day to go to London from the country sanatorium where he was being treated, and transact a great amount of business with ease.

The latest addition to Rosalie's millinery wardrobe has just arrived and she is looking it over to see if she likes it as well as she thought she did. It she doesn't change her mind, she will place the sash which she holds in her hand in the lining of the hat, which is in accordance with an idea of Parisian origin. She probably has already placed sashes in the hem of her dress and the cuffs of her coat. They are, of course, the same odor as her perfumes. One's perfumes, lotions, creams, sachets, powder, lipstick and bath salts should be of similar odor, although it is sometimes difficult to do this.

Connie Mack's Pennant Hopes Are Revived As Yankees Slip

Champs' Lead Dwindles; Drop Seven Out of Ten

Huggins in Desperate Straits Today for Pitching After 24 to 6 Touncing at Hands of Indians.

By Les Conklin.

NEW YORK, July 30.—The New York Yankees have cracked up, as we say at the hangar, and the panic is on in the camp of the world's champions. The Philadelphia Athletics have cut New York's lead in half during the past fortnight, reviving Connie Mack's dream of winning another pennant after fourteen long years in the wilderness.

HODAPP BOOSTS BATTING MARK

CLEVELAND, July 30.—Johnny Hodapp, slugging Cleveland third baseman, hit safely in eight consecutive official times at bat before flying out to Combs in the third inning of yesterday's game with New York. He singled in the last inning of the first game in Saturday's double-header, got four hits in as many official times at bat in the second game, and hit safely in his first three times at bat yesterday.

In his last three games Hodapp raised his batting average from .293 to .323, a gain of 25 points.

Replies To Sirko's Manager

Foutts Willing to Match Kenny Davis With McKesporter.

BYRON FOUTTS, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, today replied to the challenge of Robert M. Lehrman, who pilots Monte Sirko.

Lehrman recently declared that while Porto was given a decision over Sirko, the victory was unpopular and that he was willing to toss his protégé into any ring, any time, any place, with Porto on a winner-take-all basis.

Now Foutts goes him one better. Foutts today said he would not send Porto against Sirko but would take up Mr. Lehrman's offer with Kenny Davis, local lad who broke into boxing last winter in preliminaries at the Eagles' arena, as his fistic delegate.

Foutts declares that he has made several attempts to have Porto rematched with Sirko but says that "the promoters I talked to about it accused me of asking a set-up for Porto."

Heir of Famous Spitballer Is Pitcher Like His Daddy

Young Walsh Brings Back the Olden, Golden Days of Diamond Sport.

GHOSTS of the past hovered over Yankee stadium the other day. For a brief space the olden, golden days of baseball were back. Out there on the mound the son of a famous father pitched the kind of ball that his daddy used to pitch, losing his game only when the game's greatest batsman lammed out his thirty-ninth homer of the season.

It was a typical Ruthian smack that hit the fence-buster uncorked in the fatal seventh, and the crowd rose to its feet and acclaimed the hero. But the biggest cheer of the afternoon went up as young Ed Walsh, the son of Big Ed of White Sox fame, trudged to the clubhouse, relieved by a pinch hitter in the eighth.

For this youngster with a right arm of braided steel, a month out of the classic halls of Notre Dame, had turned back the crowding years and showed the kind of stuff that made Big Ed the greatest spitball pitcher of his time and one of the greatest of all time. For five innings he held the Yankees in the hollow of his big hand, hitless and runless. For six innings he dived them in kalsome with a strong right arm that gave off a baffling fast ball and a knuckle ball and a deceptive change of pace.

Serene, impassive, business-like, this son of a great daddy went along, making the Yankees "murderers' row" look silly, while his parent and mentor, Big Ed, looked on critically from the Chicago dugout. Then it happened. In the seventh, with two balls and no strikes the count on Ruth, young Ed lammed one over the inside and high and George Herman blasted it over the fence into the bleachers. Young Ed then and there became a member in regular standing of the Babe's little class of serious thinkers.

Young Ed Walsh is the product of twenty-three years of coaching on the part of his dad, for the boy has had a baseball in his hand ever since he was a blue-eyed baby and lay in an old-fashioned cradle in a little house in Meriden, Conn. Big Ed was wheeling them in those days, the stout-hearted mainstay of the Chicago White Sox. And he vowed when the boy grew up, he, too, would wear a White Sox uniform and hear, as he was hearing, the roar of admiring multitudes.

Lightning Flashes of the Track

Frank WYKOFF
TH' FAST STEPPING
HIGH SCHOOL PHENOM
FROM GLENDALE, CAL.
WHO IS EXPECTED TO WIN
TH' 100-METER TODAY
AT AMSTERDAM.

© 1928, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

© 1928 by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

AFTER getting away to a flying start yesterday, the Olympics continue with a burst of speed today, and from now until the finish of the marathon race on Sunday, which brings to a close the track and field events, the interest of U. S. track fans will be centered largely around the happenings over at Amsterdam.

Three events are slated for final decision today, with the balance of the time devoted to trials and semifinals.

While the U. S. will be ably represented in the hammer throw and the 400-meter hurdles, the folks over here will be listening in on the radio or grabbing the early editions of the papers to find out how young Frank Wykoff, the Glendale, Calif., high schooler, fared in the 100-meter dash. The flash from the Pacific Coast amazed the world during the final trials at Cambridge, Mass., early in July, when he equaled the Olympic 100-meter record four times in one afternoon and vanished the greatest array of sprinters America or the world has ever known.

When the President Roosevelt showed off from this side loaded down with the pick of our athletes and bound for Holland, this same Wykoff was credited with being the calmest passenger on board the big liner as it was towed out into the Atlantic by tooting tugs.

Such calmness, such ability and such consistency of performance must be respected, and if the youngster doesn't triumph today at Amsterdam the world will be called upon to doff its lid to the greatest sprinter ever known, because the fellow who beats Wykoff will undoubtedly have to achieve greater speed over the distance than has yet been attained.

The folks in Glendale, a suburb of Los Angeles, think a whole lot of their entry for Olympic honors and insisted on sending a special coach along with the youngster.

In addition to Wykoff the U. S. 100 meter team includes Bob McAllister, the flying cop of the Columbus Council, K. of C., New York; Henry R. Russell, Cornell university, and Claude O. Bracey, Rice Institute, Tex. All of these fellows are capable performers over the short distance, McAllister being the only one who could be really classed as a veteran sprinter.

The first trials for the other dash—the 200-meter—are scheduled for tomorrow, with the finals in the event being booked for Wednesday.

In this event our Uncle Sam is also represented by some high class talent. At Cambridge the final was won by Charles Borah, the former University of California speed demon, who is now sprinting under the colors of the Los Angeles A. C. Borah, in winning the final trials before embarking, defeated Charles Paddock, a team mate from the Los Angeles A. C., who has long been known as the Fastest Human.

The rest of the team for the longer of the two dashes is composed of Jackson V. Sholz, New York A. C., and Henry H. Cumming, Jr., Newark A. C. The best time at Cambridge was 2:21.15, and was made by Borah in his first qualifying round.

In this event, as in the shorter sprint, it would seem that the United States has an excellent chance to see the Stars and Stripes lead the world, and it wouldn't be at all surprising to learn that all of the important points in these two events were captured by our spiked shoe entries.

'Pony' McAtee Hailed as New Sande in East

Laverne Fator Also Well Liked by Turf Fraternity.

THE fellows who gamble on the gallopers at the various tracks scattered throughout the country will tell you that there are a lot of the layers who pick the jockeys rather than the mounts when it comes to looking for sudden riches.

It's a cinch that the wearers of the silk often have a lot to do with kicking the rabbits home ahead of the field. And it's true that often certain jockeys' names, appearing opposite the name of any bang-tail, will shorten the odds on that particular entry. There was a time when this was particularly true in the case of Earl Sande, but the peer of them all has not been going so good thus far this season, and he recently announced that he would retire at the close of the present racing year. Naturally he may change his mind, but from indications it would seem that he will be seen next year in the role of a trainer rather than a jockey.

Who, then, is to take Sande's place? Several boys are prominently mentioned as the best. Laverne Fator is well thought of by the racing fraternity, but Linus (Pony) McAtee has a tremendous following and the manner in which he opened the 1928 season makes him a likely possibility to fill Sande's boots—if anyone can—in the public favor.

Back a few years ago when Pony was piloting horses belonging to Harry Payne Whitney he had no equal as a lightweight jockey and few of the heavier boys were superior to him.

After a bad spill about a year ago it was generally conceded that he would never ride again. He narrowly escaped serious injury at a New York track when the Greentree Stable's Silenus bolted through the fence and threw him. He suffered cuts and bruises and a broken right knee but this Spring and Summer he seems better than ever.

A lot of races are won on the first jump and McAtee is a master at the barrier. Mars Cassidy, famous starter, says of Pony: "He's uncanny at the barrier and in my opinion one of the greatest post riders I ever saw. I've personally experienced quite a few bad starts in trying to keep McAtee from beating the gate." He seems to be more alert than ever at the post this season.

and the close followers of racing seem to feel that it would not be in the least surprising to see Pony capture the winning honors of the Eastern tracks during this year.

Another youngster who was heavily touted a year or so ago, but who failed to show anything especially exceptional in riding last season, is making better progress this year on the tracks around New York. This is Harry Payne Whitney's present star, Ray (Sonny) Workman. Many sharp observers figured that Sonny would fall through when compelled to ride without his apprentice allowance, but in his recent starts he has shown that he is capable of holding his own with the full-fledged jockeys and in gradually improving his riding. In his improved form he figures to make it interesting for the present leaders and his record is worth keeping an eye on.

Both of these pilots, together with Fator, are doing their riding at the Eastern tracks. With the widespread popular interest in racing and with such cities as Chicago holding continuous racing almost throughout the entire Summer there are other jockeys who are making riding history, but it would seem that McAtee and Fator seem to have the inside track on the business of replacing Sande.

But the season isn't over yet and lots of things can happen.

SCHEDULED with K. T. K., Chester and the Madison Billiards in a series of three contests this week, Turk Nash faces a tough struggle in his fight to regain the pole position in the City league second half, wrestled away by last Friday's defeat at Wellsville while Homer Laughlin was beating the American Billiards.

As a result of the week-end developments, the motors are tied for second place with Wellsville while Laughlin is perched at the top, undefeated to date.

However, Homer Laughlin will not have easy sailing this week either, being paired off with Wellsville on Tuesday night and K. T. K. Thursday. The West Virginians will have their hands full in both contests.

Maranville Spark That Keeps Cards' Flag Chasers on Jump

Reformed Bad Boy of Baseball Proving Tower of Strength in Red-bird's Drive to Front.

While there is still some distance to go, the St. Louis Cardinals have a better chance to cop the National League race than any team in the circuit.

And if the Cards don't come galloping in ahead they will at least have made a noble effort. And that's always worth cheering over.

Standing out among the reasons for the Cardinal's success, like a rose in a weed patch, is a gray-haired little fellow named Maranville. Yep, the same one. His folks christened him Walter James Vincent Maranville, but the fans nicknamed him "Rabbit."

Maranville is one of baseball's bad boys, but he has certainly come back strong this season in St. Louis. He's been a tower of strength to the Cards, and he's filled up the gap at shortstop and made the infield one of the tightest in the game.

It has been said of the Rabbit that he can exert a great influence over an entire ball club—either bad or good—and this year it has been all good. He stepped into the shortstop job when Tommy Thevenow weakened and Lester Bell had to be traded. When they passed around the medals in St. Louis at the close of this season they'll most certainly pin one on Maranville.

Maranville has had a brilliant and an erratic career. He broke into organized baseball seventeen years ago with the New Bedford club in the New England League. Two seasons later he was grabbed by the Boston Braves and two years later helped the Bucks win the league flag and the World's Series from the Athletics. In 1920 Maranville went to the Pittsburgh Pirates on a trade, the Braves swapping him for three players and $15,000 which was considered a big deal in those days. In 1924 he was traded to the Chicago Cubs and the next year the Cubs made him manager thinking that perhaps the added responsibility of piloting a club would keep him out of mischief. The experience was a fizzle and Maranville landed in Brooklyn. From there he drifted to the minors and entirely out of the picture.

This Spring Rabbit came busting back full of good resolutions and lots of pep. His fielding and batting eye seemed undimmed and he has made a come-back which will go down in the history of the national pastime as a real one. And every fan in the country is pulling for the old-timer to keep in the middle of the road.

Despite the fact that he was sometimes a bad actor, the Rabbit always was a ball player. Right now at the age of thirty-five and regardless of his diminutive stature he covers ground like a youthful star who is just breaking in under the expansive canopy.

The rejuvenated Maranville most certainly helped put the spark in the Cardinals team right at the time when that spark was needed badly. That was when the St. Louis club made its first strike for the pennant in June, when things were the hottest and the Cincinnati Reds were leading the procession.

And if the Cards do cop the bunting and square off with the Yankees in the big series the Rabbit will have surely made his come-back complete.

Gene's "Retirement" Indicates Lull In Title Competition

Critics Agree Tunney Will be Back for More

Intimate Plans May be Under Way for Big Battle Between "Retired" Title Holder and His "Successor."

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Granting that Mr. Gene Tunney may announce today, tomorrow or at such time as his fancy may dictate—that he has decided to withdraw himself from vulgar public scrutiny, I should say it is only fair to ask just when and exactly where we may expect him to begin active training again for a heavyweight championship fight. Originally, it was somebody else's guess that Tunney is planning to retire; today, and until further notice, it is mine, if he does, that he won't stay retired henceforth and forever.

Tunney has an unusually strong will and it pleases him unduly to give it a free run and a long tether. For someone to persist in scoffing at his retirement would be tantamount to proving this strange man to be a doubter wrong. But it's possible his desire to retire may be supported by an emotion of even greater insistence: Tunney's secret pleasure in the elevated position he now occupies, the satisfaction experienced by a sensitive man in knowing that he is important—in brief, his status as undisputed champion. Tunney loves that title.

Of course, championships are won and lost in the ring. But even the claims of a retired fighter are not protected by this unwritten code of honor. In time, these claims are outlawed, how is this time limit measured? It isn't. It is determined only by the character of the man who finally succeeds to the title. Witness Benney Leonard. No one now regards him as the lightweight champion. Why? Because Sammy Mandell has come into public acceptance as a thoroughly deserving successor. This can happen to Tunney.

It even may be his hope and that of Tex Rickard that it does happen. Picture for yourself the attraction built up by the spectacle of the man who never lost the title meeting the man who holds it by reason of having fought his way up to the position. Two heavyweight champions in the ring!

Why, there you have the million dollar gate Rickard dreamed of and didn't get with the Tunney-Heeneey fight last Thursday. There is Rickard's "out" from the loss he sustained that evening. It may be well to remember that, even though Tunney may proclaim that he is through, he signed a contract not more than two weeks ago to fight for Rickard at some future date.

GENE'S 'MUM' ON FUTURE PLANS

NEW YORK, July 30.—Gene Tunney, king of heavyweight fighters, will formally announce his retirement from the prize ring this week, according to his manager, Billy Gibson.

According to his associates, the champion will take up banking or industrial business after studying philosophy in English and German universities. Tunney himself has declined to confirm these reports and other rumors to the effect that he would marry, head for the South Pole with his friend, Commander Richard E. Byrd, or enter the priesthood.

It may be well not to forget, either, that Jeffries was in retirement for six years. But he came back at Reno. Dempsey, too, was in virtual retirement for three years prior to the Philadelphia fight. And he came back, not once but twice and, for all anyone knows, he might be foolish enough to give it still another whirl.

Tunney might repeat their example. If he does, you can gamble he won't repeat their mistakes. If he retires and comes back, he will do so within an interval of less than two years. For he will have no illusions about his ability to fight successfully—the only kind of a fight he would consider—out of competition longer than that.

Another thing about Dempsey and Jeffries: Money brought them back. It won't lure Tunney for a moment. If he retires, he is likely to come back for the most compelling reason in the world, because he may find he can't stay away.

Straight-Away Record Holder Altoona Entry

Keech on Track Wednesday for Practice Runs.

ALTOONA, Pa., July 30.—Ray Keech, holder of the world's straight-away record of 267 miles an hour, made last spring with his massive Troplex car on the sands of Daytona Beach, today filed his formal entry blank for the International Speed Sweepstakes at the Altoona speedway on Saturday, August 18.

The smiling red-headed pilot who dared death on the sea-swept course of Florida after Frank Lockhart crashed to his death trying for the same phenomenal mark, is to arrive at the famous mile-and-a-quarter bowl here Wednesday to begin practice for the sensational classic.

Keech on July Fourth won the big event at the Salem, N. H., board speedway, defeating such celebrities of the speed world as Leon Drury, the giant French ace who is to again face him here in the line-up of 18 of the world's fastest cars and most daring drivers. Keech also finished in fourth place on May 30 at Indianapolis after having serious oil trouble early in that 500-mile event.

Keech and Drury have already become bitter enemies in competition and speedway officials stated today that the two famous drivers would meet on the bowl here twice on August 18. It is a certainty that both will be among the four greatest pilots chosen to compete for the world's 10-mile championship in the first of the two special short events to be run before the 200-mile main classic.

Keech looms as the successor to the crown held by Lockhart as the most fearless pilot to hold a steering wheel. Already he has gained a reputation as the hardest man to pass on the hazardous turns, forcing his leaping car up against the heavy outer guard rail in passing, and officials have already warned him that he has been striking fire with his hub cap in sickening skids against the steel rail.

Keech is short and powerful in build, his physique admirably adapted to the fearful punishment of racing, but his supreme test is due here on August 18 when experts predict he will have to force his mount wide open every mile of the long grind.

Cochet Victor in First Set

Triumphs Over 'Big Bill' Tilden by Score of 9-7.

ROLAND GARROS STADIUM, Paris, July 30.—After a sizzling session during which the lead shuttled back from one to the other, Henry Cochet triumphed over "Big Bill" Tilden, America's ace, in the first set of their match in the Davis cup series here today. The score was 9-7.

Tilden was wild, shooting a great many more balls out of the court than he had in his great match last Friday with Acoste. Despite that he put up a terrific fight.

Cochet won the opening game on his own service in fairly easy fashion. After Tilden had netted two returns, he braced momentarily and passed the Frenchman twice. Cochet, however, took the next two points and the game.

After three deuces in the second game Cochet broke through Tilden's service to win on two outs by Tilden. The third game started the same way. Tilden driving the first two off Cochet's service at least a foot over the back line. The game went to deuce twice, Tilden finally pulling out, leaving Cochet leading at two games to one.

Cochet won the fourth game at 4-2, taking a lead of three-one in games. Tilden, however, took the fifth game at 4-1. Both players at this time had developed caution and were playing almost exclusively from the back line. In one rally the ball crossed the net 18 times.

Tilden evened up the score by taking the sixth game at 4-1.

Cochet ached Tilden on the third ball in the seventh game and then passed him twice for the game, 4-1. Tilden was still having a hard time finding the back line, shooting over it regularly. Tilden slowed up his service in the eighth game, sending over easy ones and then running to the net to kill off Cochet's returns. He won, evening up the games at four-all.

Tilden jumped into the lead, taking the ninth game on Cochet's service. The tenth game was another ding-dong affair, Tilden driving several balls out, while Cochet netted nearly as many. Cochet finally pulled out, again evening the score.

Playing in his old time form, Tilden took the eleventh game, going into the lead again. But Cochet came right back to win the twelfth and the games were again all square.

Tilden broke through Cochet's service again to win the thirteenth, again taking the lead. But the American grew wild again, driving many balls into the net and Cochet took the fourteenth and also the fifteenth games. During the fifteenth Tilden shot a hot one down the sidelines which he thought Cochet couldn't get. The Frenchman amazed the gallery by racing over and returning the ball, catching Tilden flat-footed. Cochet then romped through the sixteenth game for the first set at 9-7.

The point score: First set: Cochet 4 7 4 1 1 4 1 4 2 6 1 4 1 4 4 4 52-9. Tilden 2 5 6 2 4 4 1 4 4 4 2 4 2 0 0 48-7.

American Vitified Products dropped their first league contest to the Grand Billiards, 13 to 11. The Smith News aggregation are on top at the present time, replacing the Club Billiards, first half winners, who have held the lead-off position since the beginning of the season. The clubs dropped two games last week and are now tied with the Golden Flowers for second place.

The schedule for this week will complete the first round of the second half. In order that the season may be concluded in reasonable time, all "rained out" games to date will be played as double headers at the next meeting of the teams.

The scarcity of playing grounds has been a handicap all through the season due to the wet weather. However, the games have been played satisfactorily and the teams have shown fine sportsmanship in putting up with poor grounds.

The American Vitified Products team, which has replaced the American Billiards, made a good showing Friday night at the Northside grounds in their first league game. They were defeated by the Grand Billiards in a tough struggle.

CLEVELAND NINE OHIO CHAMPIONS

COLUMBUS, O., July 30.—Cleveland Yankees today were champions of the Ohio American Legion Junior Baseball tournament, having clinched the title yesterday in a one-sided victory over the Toledo De Vilbis at Neil park here. The game lasted but six innings, being called to permit the start of the double-header between Columbus and Minneapolis in the American Association, when the score stood at 21 to 3.

The Yankees had battered their way to finals by trouncing, almost as badly, the Caldwell entry Saturday.

Like Wheat at 50c Cotton at a Nickel Gasoline at 7c

The best rubber mileage is cheaper today than wheat at 50c per bushel, cotton at a nickel a pound, gasoline at 7c. Only such unheard-of low prices in these commodities can give an idea of the extremely low level of today's tire costs.

IN this favorable price situation motorists are taking fullest advantage--selecting the quality that can be depended upon to carry through the next high-price tire period.

The saving in buying now will be cause for congratulation more than once in the seasons to come.

Tire Prices Lowest Ever

With crude rubber selling below production figures, today there is no such thing as a high priced tire. Even the top quality tire is low priced now--costing less than was formerly paid for tires of ordinary service.

But economy isn't the only big feature of today's tire buying opportunity. Freedom from trouble is more important to tire users, in this fast moving age, than ever before--and the supreme safety and riding comfort, the serene peace of mind that goes with General's uninterrupted mileage, will alone sell you the top quality idea for all time--even should tire prices rebound to their highest peak.

French Need One Victory to Retain Trophy.

PARIS, July 30. — France needs to win only one of the two Davis cup singles matches today to retain possession of the trophy for another year.

The obstacles facing the American team are regarded as almost insurmountable. "Big Bill" Tilden, who defeated Rene Lacoste and then, paired with Francis T. Hunter, went down to defeat before Henri Cochet and Jean Borotra in the doubles, faces Cochet today.

Should he win, the series will be even at two all. Then all chances for an American victory will fall on the shoulders of John Hennessey when he faces Lacoste after the Tilden-Cochet match. But Hennessey's chances of defeating the French ace are looked upon as slim.

A Mystery Serial That Defies Solution

"See here, it was like this," he said at last. "There was something in that case—some piece of evidence, slight in itself perhaps, but still enough of a clue to connect the murderer with the crime. It was vital to him that it should be destroyed before it was discovered and its significance appreciated."

Therefore, he took the risk, the great risk, of coming in here. Finding the case locked, he was obliged to force it, thus betraying his presence. For him to take that risk, it must have been something of great importance."

"But what was it?"

"Ah!" cried Poirot, with a gesture of anger. "That, I do not know! A document of some kind, without doubt, possibly the scrap of paper Dorcas saw in her hand yesterday afternoon. And I—his anger burst forth freely—'miserable animal that I am! I guessed nothing! I have behaved like an imbecile! I should never have left that case here. I should have carried it away with me. Ah, triple pig! And now it is gone. It is destroyed—but is it destroyed? Is there not yet a chance—we must leave no stone unturned—'"

He rushed like a madman from the room, and I followed him as soon as I had sufficiently recovered my wits. But by the time I had reached the top of the stairs, he was out of sight.

Mary Cavendish was standing where the staircase branched, staring down into the hall in the direction in which he had disappeared.

"What has happened to your extraordinary little friend, Mr. Hastings? He has just rushed past me like a mad bull."

"He's rather upset about something," I remarked feebly. "I really did not know how much Poirot would wish me to disclose. As I saw a faint smile gather on Mrs. Cavendish's expressive mouth, I endeavored to try and turn the conversation by saying: 'They haven't met yet, have they?'"

"Who?"

"Mr. Inglethorp and Miss Howard."

She looked at me in rather a disconcerting manner.

"Do you think it would be such a disaster if they met?"

"Well, don't you?" I said, rather taken aback.

"No." She was smiling in her quiet way. "I should like to see a good flare up. It would clear the air. At present we are thinking so much and saying so little."

"John doesn't think so," I remarked. "He's anxious to keep them apart."

"Oh, John."

Something in her tone fired me, and I blurted out: "Old John's an awfully good sort."

She studied me curiously for a minute or two, and then said, to my great surprise:

"You are loyal to your friend. I like you for that."

"Aren't you my friend too?"

"I am very bad friend."

"Why do you say that?"

"Because it is true. I am charming to my friends one day, and forget all about them the next."

I don't know what impelled me, but I was nettled, and I said foolishly and not in the best of taste:

"Yet you seem to be invariably charming to Dr. Bauerstein!"

Instantly I regretted my words. Her face stiffened. I had the impression of a steel curtain coming down blotting out the real woman. Without a word, he turned and went swiftly up the stairs, whilst I stood like an idiot gaping after her.

I was recalled to other matters by a frightful row going on below. I could hear Poirot shouting and expounding. I was vexed to think that my diplomacy had been in vain. The little man appeared to be taking the whole house into his confidence, a proceeding of which I, for one, doubted the wisdom. Once again I could not help regretting that my friend was so prone to lose his head in moments of excitement. I stepped briskly down the stairs. The sight of me calmed Poirot almost immediately. I drew him aside.

"My dear fellow," I said, "is this wise? Surely you don't want the whole house to know of this occurrence? You are actually playing into the criminal's hands."

"You think so, Hastings?"

"I am sure of it."

"Well, well, my friend, I will be guided by you."

"Good. Although, unfortunately, it is a little too late now."

"True."

He looked so crestfallen and abashed that I felt quite sorry, although I still thought my rebuke a just and wise one.

"Well," he said at last, let us go, mon ami."

"You have finished here?"

"For the moment, yes. You will walk back with me to the village?"

"Willingly."

He picked up his little suitcase, and we went out through the open window in the drawing-room. Cynthia Murdoch was just coming in, and Poirot stood aside to let her pass.

"Excuse me, mademoiselle, one minute."

"Yes?" she turned inquiringly.

"Did you ever make up Mrs. Inglethorp's medicines?"

A slight flush rose in her face, as she answered rather constrainedly:

"No."

"Only her powders?"

The flush deepened as Cynthia replied:

"Oh, yes, I did make up some sleeping powders for her once."

"These?"

Poirot produced the empty box which had contained powders.

She nodded.

"Can you tell me what they were? Sulphonal? Veronal?"

"No, they were bromide powders."

"Ah! Thank you, mademoiselle; good morning."

As we walked briskly away from the house, I glanced at him more than once. I had often before noticed that, if anything excited him, his eyes turned green like a cat's. They were shining like emeralds now.

"My friend," he broke out at last. "I have a little idea, a very strange, and probably utterly impossible idea. And yet—it fits in."

I shrugged my shoulders. I privately thought that Poirot was rather too much given to these fantastic ideas. In this case, surely, the truth was only too plain and apparent.

"So that is the explanation of the blank label on the box," I remarked. "Very simple, as you said. I really wonder that I did not think of it myself."

Poirot did not appear to be listening to me.

"They have made one more discovery, la-bas," he observed, jerking his thumb over his shoulder in the direction of Styles. "Mr. Wells told me as we were going upstairs."

"What was it?"

"Locked up in the desk in the boudoir, they found a will of Mrs. Inglethorp's, dated before her marriage, leaving her fortune to Alfred Inglethorp. It must have been made just at the time they were engaged. It came quite as a surprise to Wells—and to John Cavendish also. It was written on one of those printed will forms, and witnessed by two of the servants—not Dorcas."

"Did Mr. Inglethorp know of it?"

"He says not."

"One might take that with a grain of salt," I remarked sceptically. "All these wills are very confusing. Tell me, how did those scribbled words on the envelope help you to discover that a will was made yesterday afternoon?"

Poirot smiled.

"Mon ami, have you ever, when writing a letter, been arrested by the fact that you did not know how to spell a certain word?"

"Yes, often. I suppose every one has."

"Exactly. And have you not, in such a case, tried the word once or twice on the edge of the blotting-paper, or a spare scrap of paper, to see if it looked right? Well, that is what Mrs. Inglethorp did. You will notice that the word 'possessed' is spelt first with one 's' and subsequently with two—correctly."

"I am sure of it."

"Well, well, my friend, I will be guided by you."

"Good. Although, unfortunately, it is a little too late now."

"True."

He looked so crestfallen and abashed that I felt quite sorry, although I still thought my rebuke a just and wise one.

"Well," he said at last, let us go, mon ami."

"You have finished here?"

"For the moment, yes. You will walk back with me to the village?"

"Willingly."

He picked up his little suitcase, and we went out through the open window in the drawing-room. Cynthia Murdoch was just coming in, and Poirot stood aside to let her pass.

"Excuse me, mademoiselle, one minute."

"Yes?" she turned inquiringly.

"Did you ever make up Mrs. Inglethorp's medicines?"

A slight flush rose in her face, as she answered rather constrainedly:

"No."

"Only her powders?"

The flush deepened as Cynthia replied:

"Oh, yes, I did make up some sleeping powders for her once."

"These?"

Poirot produced the empty box which had contained powders.

She nodded.

"Can you tell me what they were? Sulphonal? Veronal?"

"No, they were bromide powders."

"Ah! Thank you, mademoiselle; good morning."

As we walked briskly away from the house, I glanced at him more than once. I had often before noticed that, if anything excited him, his eyes turned green like a cat's. They were shining like emeralds now.

"My friend," he broke out at last. "I have a little idea, a very strange, and probably utterly impossible idea. And yet—it fits in."

I shrugged my shoulders. I privately thought that Poirot was rather too much given to these fantastic ideas. In this case, surely, the truth was only too plain and apparent.

"So that is the explanation of the blank label on the box," I remarked. "Very simple, as you said. I really wonder that I did not think of it myself."

Poirot did not appear to be listening to me.

"They have made one more discovery, la-bas," he observed, jerking his thumb over his shoulder in the direction of Styles. "Mr. Wells told me as we were going upstairs."

"What was it?"

"Locked up in the desk in the boudoir, they found a will of Mrs. Inglethorp's, dated before her marriage, leaving her fortune to Alfred Inglethorp. It must have been made just at the time they were engaged. It came quite as a surprise to Wells—and to John Cavendish also. It was written on one of those printed will forms, and witnessed by two of the servants—not Dorcas."

"Did Mr. Inglethorp know of it?"

"He says not."

"One might take that with a grain of salt," I remarked sceptically. "All these wills are very confusing. Tell me, how did those scribbled words on the envelope help you to discover that a will was made yesterday afternoon?"

CHAPTER 15.

Poirot smiled.

"Mon ami, have you ever, when writing a letter, been arrested by the fact that you did not know how to spell a certain word?"

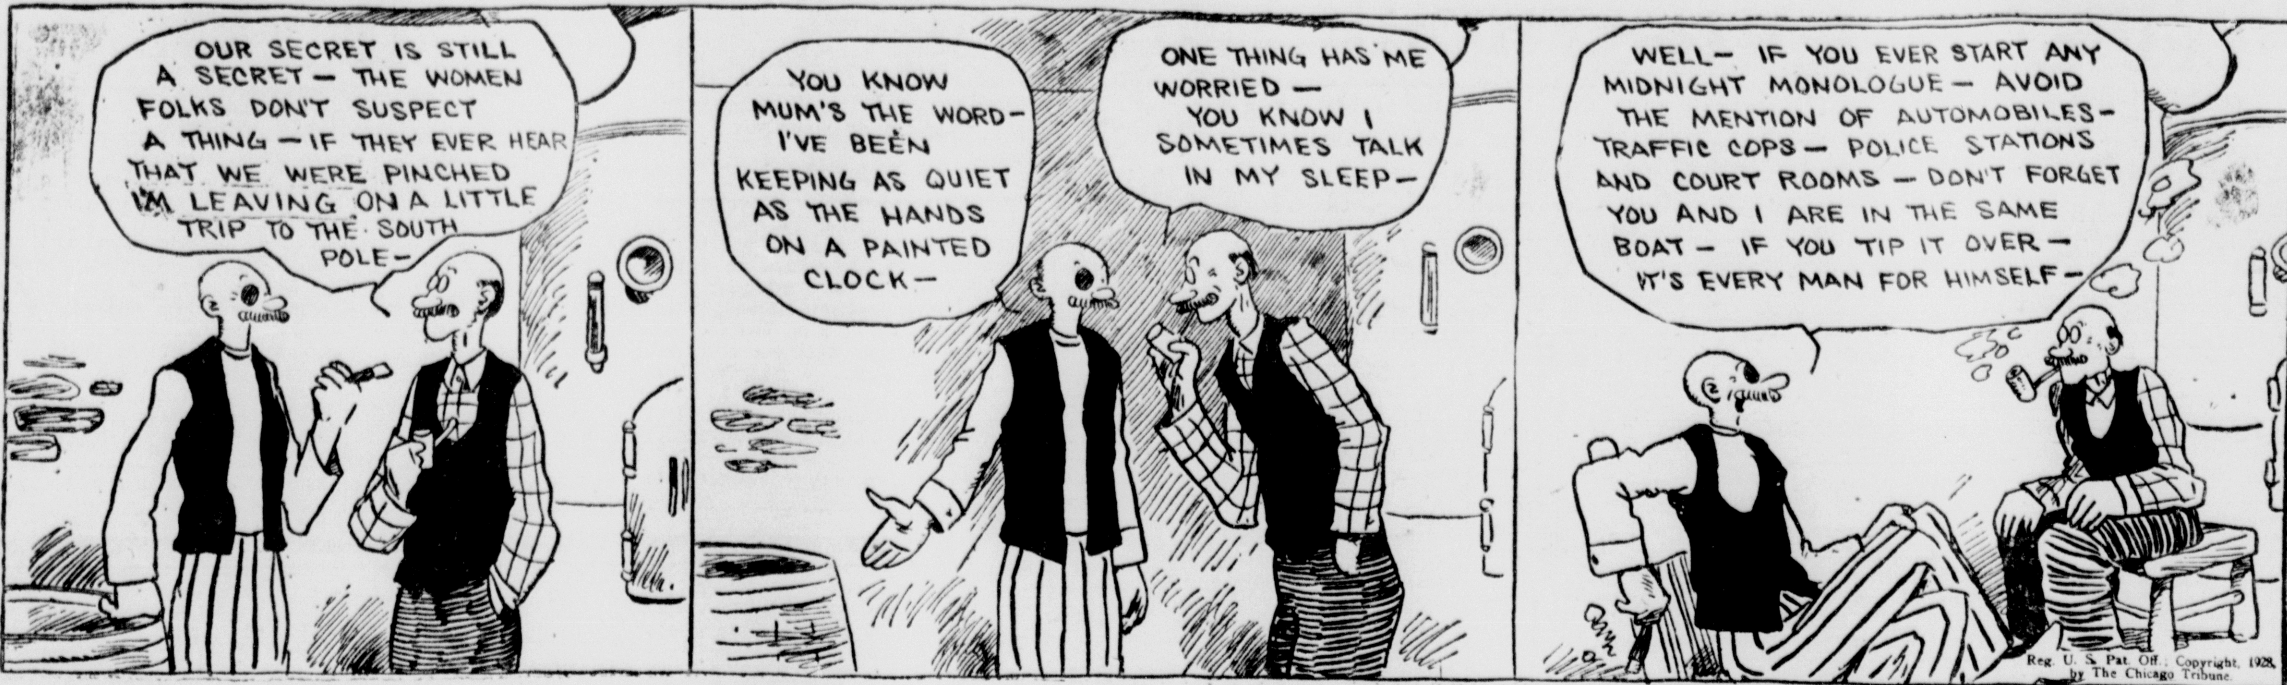

"Yes, often. I suppose every one has."

"Exactly. And have you not, in such a case, tried the word once or twice on the edge of the blotting-paper, or a spare scrap of paper, to see if it looked right? Well, that is what Mrs. Inglethorp did. You will notice that the word 'possessed' is spelt first with one 's' and subsequently with two—correctly."

ANNIE LAURIE'S
TIMELY ADVICE

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

My girl friend has been keeping company with a very fine young man for a year. But he has two very disagreeable faults. My friend has written me time and time again for advice. He comes up to her house when he is drinking and does not come when he is supposed to. You understand he cares for her, I am sure of that. His boy friend is also my friend and has been for two years and I correspond with him. FRIEND: I can't say that I think very highly of the young man for calling on your friend in an intoxicated condition. To begin with, a man cannot hold much respect for a woman when he dares to enter her presence in this condition. Add to this the fact that he continuously breaks engagements with her, and I think it odd, or should give a very clear indication of his lack of both love and respect for her. If a man refuses to reform before marriage, there is little chance of his reforming afterwards, and your friend is only piling up misery for herself in her future if she persists in remaining engaged to a man of this calibre. Hard as it may be, her wisest course would be to break the engagement and try and forget. If he really cares for her, he will prove it by breaking himself of these obnoxious habits and being the man he should be—the man who can hold her respect and love through the years.

world's playground, Biarritz, France. Many beautiful scenes are shown of this famous summer resort on the bay of Biscay. Incidentally, this is the first picture in which Miss Del Rio wears modern dress, which she does with unusual charm. But it is her acting in the great emotional scenes of this production with the two male leads that grip the spectator. There are many such scenes which will remain unforgettable and that will do much to add to the fame this young star has already achieved.

DOLORES DEL RIO
IN SCREEN HIT

Dolores Del Rio, whose unforgettable role of Charmaine in "What Price Glory," made her famous overnight, scores again in the stellar role of Carmelita in Fox Films colorful drama "No Other Woman" which had its first screening at the Ceramic theater today.

In this production, directed by Lou Tellegen, the beautiful Dolores has a strikingly different characterization to perform than she had in the great war epic. Instead of the wild French peasant girl whom she interpreted with such daring, she essays to portray the part of a sophisticated woman of the world, and with splendid success.

The story in which she appears is of unusual interest and is well motivated, holding the audience's attention throughout the screening. It deals with a fortune hunting society gambler, played by Ben Bard, who marries a wealthy South American girl, Miss Del Rio, for her money, while the true lover hesitates to propose, because of her wealth.
